Who are We?

Our firm has a distinguished history of representing businesses and individuals beginning in 1908 when Isidor Kahn, an honor graduate of Indiana University Law School, first began his practice in Evansville. Mr. Kahn became an expert in tax and labor law and was widely known for his litigation prowess and business acumen. We continue the practice Mr. Kahn established.

Today, Kahn, Dees, Donovan & Kahn, LLP maintains a creditors' rights and collection law practice group that is committed to using all available legal collection tools to provide our clients with the most effective representation possible, while also meeting the highest ethical standards. In support of our lawyers' collection efforts on behalf of our clients, the firm has a collection department of paralegals devoted exclusively to collection matters and assisted by the latest legal collection technology.

In addition to creditor's rights and collection law, we practice civil law in such other areas as business law, insurance defense, labor, employment, estate planning, real estate, tax, intellectual property, zoning and land use. We are regularly engaged in negotiations, arbitrations, mediations, administrative proceedings, transactions, trials and appeals.

Our firm is a member of Meritas, a network of nearly 200 independent business law firms located in major cities throughout the world.
